Mr. McKellar who made some remore cases, it is easy to draw the deduction that a well-conducted mute newspaper, circulating in all parts of the Union, would be a vehicle of information Dr. Pa of very great value.

Closing Exercises.

The winter term of the school in District No. 8, taught by Mr. George Myers and Mrs Ella Baker, closed on Friday last with pleasant exercises. There were recitations, lamations, dialogues, essays and singing. Everything was done well and, considering the crowded room and the little and inconvenient space left for acting, we think the performers in the dialogues entitled to a great deal of credit. Among the most pleasing of the dialogues was the Little Visitor, it being one that the young actors could fully understand and therefore render naturally; and if we had any criticism to offer upon the compositions it would be that the subjects chosen were beyond the years of the writers, rendering it impossible for them to express their own ideas in their own way; while without doing this one can never write well. The singing, a new feature in these exercises, was good and we are glad that it has been introduced in the school.

The walls of the room were neatly trimmed with evergreen. Over the blackboard was the motto in clear, well executed letters, "Labor has a Sure Reward." Underneath it was a wreath, and over each door a star, the whole producing a pleasing effect.

According to the system of marking, the highest standing possible for any one to attain is 3, and two of the girls, Addie Burrows and Mary Tourot, came pretty near to that, having reached 2 56-67 We hope they will get 3 next time. The The prizes in spelling were given in the morning instead of the afternoon, but we learn that in the highest class it was received by Addie Burrows; in the B class by Sarah Matthews; C class, Eddie Gleason; in the 2d and 3d Reader class, Bertie Barker.

The school is in good hands. The task of filling the place of so able and experienced a teacher as Commissioner Ladd is not a light one to undertake, but we learn that Mr. Myers has succeeded well, and thereupon he receives our congratulations.

A GREAT REVIVAL.—There has been a great revival going on for the past five weeks at North Volney. The Church has been greatly revived and some 20 or 25 have expressed a determination to leave the paths of sin and walk in the narrow way. The aged, the youth and the children are among this number. And while many were trying to do good evil was present with them. When the meetings were at their height of interest some living in the vicinity got up a dance to draw away lest they lose some of their number, for we read in the Scriptures that - goeth about like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour.

The Loomis Case.

On Friday Cornelia Loomis, Denio's sister, and Mr. Smith, one of Denio's bondsmen, came to this city, and while here Smith was served with the papers in the matter of the judgment against the bail Saturday, Cornelia called on Denio at the jail, and the latter was much affected at seeing her; none of the family have visited him in two weeks or more. Denio burst into tears upon seeing her, and the interview was quite affecting. Cornelia also called on Judge Whitney and stated that they desired to offer as bail Grove Loomis, Martha Loomis (Bill's wife), and herself (Cornelia), who, she said, were perfectly good. Judge Whitney had previously told Martha that he should require as sureties two names outside of the Loomis family and those on the old bonds. Most of us, having arrived at years of houskeeping or discretion, nate visiting and dread visitors. Yet are we not therefore misanthropists. Rather, we love our kind, and our favorite reading is doubtless biography, table-talk, and the personal column in the newspapers. But visitors and visiting commonly imply a temporary sequestration of oldgarments, and, of the ample wardrobe of these investitures which every man hath, none fit so comfortably and are so sorrowfully banished as old habits. If, therefore, Wednesday's corned. beef and cabbage must be suppressed, as not fit for company; if Thursday's beefsteak and onions, and Friday's humble fish-ball must be translated into unfamiliar birds and beasts which Bridget illy cooks and queerly serves; if the dear se-mother must move on restless feet from dawn to dark lest some imperfrom dawn to dark lest some imperceptible pin should drop from the household machinery; if all things must be a little finer than their wont and their capacity, it is not strange that the ordinary housholdershrinks from the perturbations, which, as a host, he undergoes in his own house, or, as a guest, introduces to another them at very nearly wholesale prices. We have also just received a large invoice of Cassinere, Tricots, Coatings and Beavers, which we propose to sell at prices that will compare favorably with any other house in the county. Clothing made to order, of the latest style, and provented to fit. A good assortment of Pity 'tis, however, that we are not more social, because in the long run, men and women are a more interesting and a more valuable study than books, progress of invention has yet found in the world anything better than human affection. Each of us is the poorer by every lofty friendship that he neglects to take from opportunity. Women could be a selected with the selected between the sel take from opportunity. Women especially, whose cares are pettier and far more absorbing than men's, need the illumination of fresh ideas, witty talk, and friendly propinquity. Yet it is chiefly they who hinder this pleasure, and in whose hands it rests to make visiting the most brilliant and enticing of occupations. First, however, the whole theory of hospitality needs revision. It was very well for Hebrew gentlemen to kill the fatted calf in honor of their guest. It involved little trouble and no expense, and if one had an appetite for warm veal, nothing could be more agreeable to all concerned—except the calf. But we follow the precedent by spending half our substance at the butcher's stall for the festive joint and half the remaining moiety in cooking and serving it, trembling meanwhile lest the stranger that is within our gates be not satisfied with our bounty. Than this painful feasting better leave the fatted calf afield and to dine on a cracker and careless cheerfulness.

The whole trouble is that the hostess arranges her household not as it shall best forward the business of life, but as it shall make the most effective spectacle. She orders affairs not as she prefers, but as she fancies that her guest expects. It is a specious misapplication of the golden rule. After Apicius and Galba, it is really quite impossible to be distinguished as private caterers. After Crassus and Lucullus, no table-service can be remarkable. After Paulina, making her morning calls in $200,000 worth of jewels, the richest toilet seems to fall a little short of its high possibilities. And after Heliogabalus, there is certainly very feeble ingabalus, there is certainly very feeble incentive to the pursuit of distinction in furniture. We might wisely, therefore, SEND FOR A CIRCULAR. furniture. We might wisely, therefore, abandon the striving after these goods, strengthened in that renunciation by the recollection that the only people who were pre-eminent in their possession sacrificed everything else to get them. After all, freedom and self-culture are the costliest objects ever offered to the acquisition of man, and if he takes them he must be content to forego much else.

We confess that we have more than once fancied that we saw the soul of good in that thing evil-the modern servant. We have never found fault with her instability. Master and mistress spend their days and nights in the effort to "better themselves," to get more money for the same work, or more distinguished society for the same servitude. Bridget and Dinah are of the same blood, as we Bells Traveling Bags, and all other artiremember as Sunday and forget through the week, and, afar off, they follow us. Block. But this very fugacity and thriftlessness and want of ductility are possibly the housekeeping. We would like to have it supposed that we were born to the purple, and should not be in the least discomposed on being bidden to dine at Chatsworth, having the elegance, though not the vastness, of Chatsworth under our own roof. And in comes blundering, candid Bridget, with a wrecked ambition in shape of an omelette souffle, and unwittingly reveals to the visitor that we never had one before. It is our deep hope, as it is our strong conviction, that these rough-shod ministers of truth and simplicity will never cease to plague us with the pictorial exhibition of our small sins against those divinities until every household in the land is willing to lead a life of no more show than it can easily afford, and to attempt no difficult and unfamiliar pretences to impress visitors. So shall we gain profit by losing of our prayers.

The air is full of rumors of public and private corruption and disgraceful geting and keeping of gold. We must purificate that we were born to the purple, and should not be in the least discovery for delating and keeping of gold. We must purificate that we were born to the purple, and should not be in the least discovery of William stand, in the County of Oswego, and State of New York, by their certain independent of a mortgage bearing date the twenty on a distant of never york, by their certain indenture of a mortgage bearing date the twenty of the sum of the s limit that heaven sets to our dishonest ting and keeping of gold. We must purify our legislation, it is said. We must winnow our civil service. We must insist on virtue in high places. But reform must begin far back—at the firesides. By example our boys and girls must learn that money is not the supreme good of life. They must grow up in homes so
